Foundation giving trends in the UK

Total giving from all private sources (individuals, legacies, companies, foundations, Gift Aid tax relief) provides UK good causes with £17.8 billion annually

The top 300 foundations in the UK contribute £2.7 billion, or 15% of this funding

In its 2013 report Corporate Citizenship identified 140 corporate foundations operating in the UK in 2011/2 with an average expenditure of £1.62 million.

The top 50 corporate foundations gave grants totalling £232.3 million in 2014/15

Giving through corporate foundations has seen an uplift from 2010, year on year growth rates have outpaced those of the top 300 Foundations in the UK with the exception of 2012.

Key statistics on corporate foundations

65% of corporate foundations worldwide can imagine developing a new product or service that delivers a social benefit to society.

73% of corporate foundations worldwide report that the current giving strategy is linked to their parent company's business focus.

40% report that they work in a small number of programmatic areas, and often choose to work with fixed partner organisations that will help them to achieve long-term goals.

58% of corporate foundations measure the wider social benefit achieved as a result of their corporate foundation's activity, but 78% said that corporate foundations should measure impacts of their programmes.

But they still face challenges

Legal requirements

Reluctance from trustees

Lack of buy-in from the parent company

Lack of funds

Persisting expectations from stakeholders
